Lamborghini URUS R'Evo Limited Stealth Edition

Keep your eyes wide open and look closely at every detail — every inch of its chiselled body is made to ignite your imagination. No show-off, no patched bonnets, no false gills or blind air ducts. Each piece of it is a functioning muscle ready to pull the trigger in your mind, each rib and blade bone works to slice through air, and each fibre is laid precisely to hold the entire shell perfectly together. Yes, it is handmade — as a prototype it has been sculptured out of clay by passionate professionals dedicated to their craft, countless days they have been building up this body into a muscular athlete.

Having taken alone 1160 man-hours, 3D modelling of all surfaces ensured the whole project's top-notch execution so that every gap and every joint was up to a factory standard. Looking at the R'Evo from any distance and at any angle, you won't get the feeling that it is tuning — you see a factory-built car. Whole body has been reworked in 13 months from start to finish, and as a result, it's got over 130 individual parts carefully fabricated from high-grade carbon fibre to form the 100% new body. These parts are complemented with the interior trims made of the same carbon to match the exterior. It is most noticeable when the door is opened and you see the lit doorstep. What's more, opening the bonnet reveals another feature that catches the eye of any car connoisseur, which is a brand-new carbon engine cover.

The R'Evo is wider than the stock Urus by 80mm at the front and 88mm at the back. One might assume that a body this wide would require a special set of wheels — we followed this thought and developed a deep concave design to complete the project. The first in the series is the Stealth Edition carbon version.

If you are that lucky one, you can choose the colour to your liking, and one of just thirteen copies of R'Evo Stealth Edition will be produced for you in this bespoke colour. Rest assured, each car will be unique with its own character reflecting its owner's individuality.

Being the flagman of our product line implies each assembly is to be mandatorily executed by our top-notch professionals in person thus ensuring the quality is impeccable.

We have been proudly working with cars for twenty years, witnessing the evolution of every major project to be more sophisticated than the previous one. The R'Evo is not an exception, it represents the next chapter in our development story. With such a level of precision and complexity, this project is by far the crown jewel in our ever-expanding collection.
